[Methodology: Spelling, punctuation and/or grammar have been corrected in some instances for ease of reading and to facilitate searches of the database. Where the meaning is not compromised by adhering to the spelling, punctuation or grammar, no change has been made. Corrections or additional notes have been inserted within brackets or footnotes. Blanks appearing in the transcripts reflect blanks in the original. A bracketed question mark indicates that the word or words preceding it represent(s) a guess by me. Only materials pertinent to the military service of the veteran and to contemporary events have been transcribed. Affidavits that provide additional information on these events are included and genealogical information is abstracted, while standard, 'boilerplate' affidavits and attestations related solely to the application, and later nineteenth and twentieth century research requests for information have been omitted. I use speech recognition software to make all my transcriptions. Such software misinterprets my southern accent with unfortunate regularity and my poor proofreading fails to catch all misinterpretations. Also, dates or numbers which the software treats as numerals rather than words are not corrected: for example, the software transcribes "the eighth of June one thousand eighty six" as "the 8th of June 1786." Please call errors or omissions to my attention.]

Edmund Roberts,² who is a man of respectability and voracity, aged about 75 years, and who is reputed in the neighborhood where he resides to have been a revolutionary soldier, who being duly sworn, made oath that he believes that the above named declarant, William Hale, was a soldier of the revolution and served as stated in said declaration; and said affiant founds his opinion on the following facts: – In the spring us 1832 affiant casually fell into conversation with the said William Hale, and inquired of him whether he had been in the Revolution? Hale replied he was a soldier of the revolution, and asked affiant whether he was, and under whom he served; to which question affiant responded he was & served under Captain Alfred Moore. Whereupon Hale immediately rejoined – That he has served in Moore's company, and added that Larry or Lawrence Thompson was the Lieutenant, and went on to detail the circumstances of his services, in such manner as to convince affiant that he was the same William Hale whom he had known as one of his comrades but whose features he had forgotten in consequence of the lapse of time & failure of memory.
