State of Maryland City of Baltimore

On this 14th day of April in the year of our Lord 1818 personally appeared before me the undersigned, Thomas Gadd, residing in the City of Baltimore, aged 58 years, and applicant for a pension under the Act of Congress entitled "An Act to provide for certain persons engaged in the land and Naval Service of the United States in the Revolutionary War" -- and then and there made the following declaration on oath by me administered. -- "That he enlisted on or about the first of July 1780 in Queen Anne County on the Eastern Shore of Maryland, was mustered in Chester Town in said State in Captain Sheppard's Company of "State Regiment," ordered to Annapolis, from thence to Philadelphia, then back to Annapolis, and from thence in the month of October of same year, marched under command of Colonel Smith to the southward, -- and in the month of January 1781 joined the Army then commanded by General Green [sic, Nathanael Greene], on their retreat from the "Sharroo Hills" [sic] in South Carolina -- In the month of March following the Regiment being broken up, deponent was transferred to Captain James Bruff's Company of Second Maryland Regiment, then under the command of Colonel Stewart -- soon after which deponent was severely wounded in the head by a musket ball at the battle of Guilford Court House, sent to Perkins Hospital in the State of Virginia, and about the first of June following, joined the Regiment at the siege of "96": and when the British evacuated Charleston deponent was stationed on James Island, from thence transported by water to Annapolis, there receiving and unlimited furlough, on or about the Month of July 1783 -- which was afterwards published by proclamation of General Washington, as a final discharge -- particulars will appear by the annexed papers -- deponent relinquishes the pension formally obtained and from his reduced circumstances he needs the assistance of his country for support.

Act 30th April 1816

[fn p. 16]

United States Maryland District

I James Houston Judge of the District Court of the United States of America for the Maryland District, by Authority of an Act of Congress passed the 25th day of April 1812, entitled "an Act to revive and continue in force an Act to provide for persons who were disabled by known wounds received in the Revolutionary War, and for other purposes," do hereby especially authorize and commission Kensey Harrison Esquire of the County of Queen Anns [sic] and District of Maryland to take all evidence pursuant to the Rules and Regulations of the said Act for substantiation of the claim of Thomas Gadd of Queen Ann County in the District of Maryland, a Soldier in the Maryland Regiment, under the Command of Captain James Bruff to be placed on the pension list of the United States by reason of known wounds received in said war, while in the actual service of the United States, and in the line of his duty. And when the same shall be completed, to return the evidence, affidavits, certificates and proceedings head thereupon, together with this commission, to the Secretary of the Department of War.

Given under my hand and seal at Chester Town the 25th day of April in the year 1815

[fn p. 21: order dated 25 April 1815, issued by Judge James Houston to Doctor John Davidge Emory and Doctor James A. [could be "K"] Harper of Queen Ann County to examine Thomas Gadd in connection with his claim for a pension.]

[fn p. 23 is the purport of the two doctors: "... we hereby certify that we have examined own oath Thomas Gadd a Soldier in the revolutionary war, who was wounded by a musket in the memorable battle of Guilford Court House on the 15th of March 1781, the citatrix [sic?] of which would now evidently appear on the upper part of the left parietal bone & from which wound he declares exfoliation of bone took place before it cured up. He further declares that ever since he received the wound he has been afflicted with pain and giddiness in the head from stooping down & from severe exercise, which symptoms frequently caused him to desist from his labor. He is now old, & further declares that he feels these symptoms increase with his years. We are of opinion that being in the situation he describes himself to be, he certainly must be considerably incapacitated from gaining a maintenance for himself & family by manual labor."] examined Thomas Gad [sic] the person therein named and other persons well acquainted with him do report and find that the said Thomas Gad was a revolutionary Soldier during the greater part of that war and at the ever memorable Battle of Guilford received a severe wound in his head, which fractured his Skull and brought his life into imminent danger, from the effect of which his head is so much effected when heated by any kind of severe exertion that he is immediately obliged to desist therefrom and seek repose. This utterly prevents him from exerting that manual labor so necessary for the support of himself and young family.
