Virginia Bounty Land Warrant Application of Jesse Scott^a and
James Kerr^b

Transcribed and annotated by Nancy Pfannenstiel

I do hereby certify that by lists now in my possession it appears that sometime in the month of February seventeen and seventy eight I as a commissioned officer in seventh, afterwards, on a modulation of the American army stiled [sic, styled] states the fifth Virginia Continental Regiment received of the then County Lieutenant of Powhatan two recruits by the name of Daniel Scott and James Kerr who were [entire line illegible - perhaps a fold] Virginia serve one year. The name of a Jesse Scott does not appear on any list which I have. I recollect that there being such a man in the service, I believe in my company for a recruit from Powhatan either in the year above mentioned or the subsequent one, in the latter end of the year 177eight [1778] I reenlisted a number of soldiers at Middle or Bound Crook, whose terms of service were nearly expired, some for three years & [and] others for the continuance of the war; among whom as well as I can at this time recollect were Kerr and one of the Scotts whether Dan'l^c [Daniel] or Jesse, does not at present occur to me, perhaps I may by mistake have inserted the list the name of Daniel instead of Jesse, as to their having engaged for the war is not at present within my recollection. I remember to have enlisted some men for the war at Fredericksburg sometime in the spring of the year 177nine [1779], whether those were among them does not occur, my list for that year having been lost or otherwise mislaid; but I suppose it to be lost from the circumstances of their having after the defeat of Col. Buford [Abraham Buford]; placed themselves under the command [of] Colo. [Colonel] Armstrong in consequence of the alleged enlistment at Fredericksburg and continuing in service until the close of the war. I do not believe they had an opportunity of rejoining their proper Regiment as that was in a great measure dissolved by the fall of Charleston, altho [although] they might have joined when I was with Regt. Made a prisoner of war & never exchanged. Some of the

By the books in this office it does appear that any military land bounty warrant has been issued to Jesse Scott for his services in the Revolutionary War

It appears by the books in this office that the name of James Karr is on the list of non-commissioned officers & privates of Captain Biggs's Compy of the Va line Fort Pitt in natural service warrants issued agreeably to certificate of Council dated June 24, 1783

I am convinced that James Karr mentioned in the within, is not the person named James Kerr, the present applicant, as they belonged to different regiments and served in different parts of the United States.^d

James Wood

^a Jesse Scott was born ca 1755. He offered his oath of allegiance in Powhatan County, Virginia in 1777. (Clay, Robert Y., "Powhatan County, Virginia, Oaths of Allegiance, 1777. The Virginia Genealogist, vol. 27:3 (July-Sept. 1983), pp. 190-196.)

He was taxed in Surry County, North Carolina in 1782. Here he married Fannie Wood, the daughter of Abraham Wood. (Mrs. W.O. Absher, Surry County, North Carolina Court Minutes, Volumes I & II, 1768-1789, Easley, South Carolina: Southern Historical Press, 1985, p. 150.) He moved to the Overton County, Tennessee between 1801 and 1810. He was active in the Pleasant Run - McFarland's Creek Church across the state line in Monroe County, Kentucky. He died sometime before the 1830 census. His children were: Nancy, wife of John Coe; Mary "Polly", wife of John Harris; and Sarah, wife of John Kerr. John Kerr was a nephew of James Kerr who served with Jesse Scott in the Revolution. Other children include Frances "Frankie", wife of William Barry or Berry, Rebecca, wife of Thomas Turner Halsell, Martha "Patsy", wife of Benjamin Franklin Sims, Elizabeth, wife of John L. Sims, and two sons, Jesse Scott and Obadiah Scott. Jesse Scott never made a claim for bounty land.

^b James Kerr was the son of John and Elizabeth Henderson Kerr. His birth and baptism are recorded in the "Douglas Register". (Transcribed by W. Mac Jones, Douglas Register, "A Record of Births, Marriages and Deaths...as kept by the Rev. Wm. Douglas, 1750-1797, Baltimore: Genealogical Publishing Co., 1985, p. 230.) Like Jesse Scott, he offered his oath of allegiance in Powhatan County, Virginia. (See above) He was documented as living in Surry County, North Carolina by 1784. He was enumerated in Surry County, North Carolina in 1800, and appears to have died or left the area after that time. On the basis of this application, he was awarded 200 acres in Ohio, under the name of James Karr. (Certificate #1146, issued 23 October 1809). It was never claimed.

^c It is interesting that Mayo Carrington is confused whether it was Jesse or Daniel Scott that served under his command. Daniel is most likely related in some way to Jesse Scott, whether cousin or brother is unproven. Daniel Scott also made his oath of Allegiance in Powhatan County in 1777. (See above.) By 1782, Daniel Scott had also settled in Surry County, North Carolina. He married Ann Radford Poindexter, probably in Surry County. He was pensioned in Surry County in 1819. Daniel Scott died in Surry, County, North Carolina in 1824. His widow continued to draw pension until her death in 1835.

^d It is apparently this file of James Kerr that is cited when the revolutionary pension application of the widow, Mrs. James [Ruth Gaddy] Kerr of Wayne County, Illinois was rejected. (R 5888).
